People who love sappy movies and Valentine's Day décor will love this screen stop, which features 3D cupids and lots of hearts on a pink background. I love you slowly appear amid rising hearts - in 38 different languages. Beautiful background music is a dreamy, romantic piano tune - but you can replace it with your own music, or turn it off. Is this Valentine's Day pause screen an exaggeration, or really, really sweet? The offer gives you three days to decide. Note: This file has been updated for Windows Vista, but has been tested on XP only. -- Kim Saccio-Kent Note: When you buy something after clicking on the links in our articles, we may earn a small commitee. There is currently a free version with no app purchases and a paid version for $0.99 which also does not exist in app purchases. The scene features a Christmas tree that looks really good. It can be decorated with various decorations such as snow, presents, little robot figure, candles, and other festive decorations. It uses the view effect that uses your gyroscope or accelerometer so you can move your device and look around the little Christmas scene on your device. The background is also customizable if you pick up the paid version. There really isn't much of a difference between the free and paid version and we would love that much. The only major difference is that you can adjust the background in the paid version. You can also adjust whether you want to use a hardware gyroscope or accelerometer to convey the image. The tree always exists and the candle as well but everything else can be largely customized. I love Halloween it's my second favorite holiday only for Christmas, but it holds a special place in my heart because I get good back from my birthday and then, after 24 hours, all the good Halloween brings. People at DualBoot Games (creators from other live wallpapers like Celtic Park HD) have whipped up another for us, this time all haunted and scary, just in time for Halloween. It's called Haunted House HD, and as far as live wallpapers go, despite being time sensitive, it's probably one of the most detailed I've come across. From the moment you pop open a live wallpaper selector and choose haunted HD house, Halloween vibe will wash over you. Camera pans by a creepy house, shrouded in fog, as the lights flash intermittently. Jack-s-lantern guarding the entrance and scary messages appear on the door in blood. Everything is very smooth, despite the fact that there is so much going on, opens the door and closes on its own while the camera Again, the lights turn on, revealing a silhouette in the window, and the flag on the mailbox moves up and down on its own. If you want to go inside the house, you will have to jump into the settings menu completely loaded and change the camera menu, when I said download, I meant it. You can choose to view the camera, assign a name to the mailbox and entries, choose the type of face you want for the pumpkin, and enable or disable each variable separately wallpaper for the display. If you want to get a holiday spirit, Haunted House HD is $1.99 in the Android market. We have more photos and download links after the break the architects of the Brooklyn-based Snarkitecture company are obsessed with fossils. Instead of building something, as most architects do, they like to carve things out. Even when those things are completely two-dimensional for the 2017 edition of Salone del Mobile, the annual design exhibition and festival in Milan, Snarkitecture created topographies, a backdrop featuring a pattern of shredded paper. Look at the pattern from afar, and it seems to come out of the wall. [Photo: Lauren Coleman] designers stacked sheets of paper of heavyweight and created a hollow by tearing the leaves one by one. Once finished, the stack looked like a topographical map. They photographed the details of the edges of the horn and printed it on a background. When installed, it creates a three-dimensional optical illusion that gives a flat surface depth. The company said in a statement in reference to the aging process of the layered background, the design reveals an unexpected relationship between destruction and construction. It's just the company's last attempt to play with a positive and negative space. For fashion designer Richard Chai, Snarkitecture's designers made a cavernous pop-up by shaving styrofoam with a hot wire cutter. They are further interested on the idea for design Miami by building a cave with an inflatable for its wing entrance. For the store front for the installation of art and architecture, the company used picks, hammers and chisels to create real cracks in the North Pole of EPS foam. Snarkitecture even make a chocolate bar that resembles crossed tectonic plates. Check out the collection - designed for Brooklyn Wall Calico covers - in the slideshow above. Above.
